

Ms. Aaliya Sayed, (MA)

Assistant Professor, Department of English

Ms. Aaliya Sayed is an Assistant Professor in the English Department at Maniben Nanavati Women's College. Apart from lecturing at MNWC, she is the Co-Incharge of the Women Development Cell committee and a member of the NSS committee and Public Relations Committee. Along with this, Ms. Aaliya Sayed also contributed to teaching Communication skills to the Transgender Community as part of the Raah Project organized by the Department of Child Development of MNWC.

She has a Master's Degree in English Literature from SNTD Women's University and a Bachelor's Degree in the same from Sophia College for Women. She presented a research paper on "Resistance In Ambivalence: Reading Nafisi and Moaveni Beyond the Political Rhetoric of Iran Versus America" for an International graduate writing workshop organized by the Department of Comparative Literature, Hong Kong University in October 2021.

Previously, she worked as a Content Editor at a Market Research Company for the post of Quality Check Associate. Along with this, she did her internship as a Research Intern at the People's Archive of Rural India (PARI). Here, she published 3 articles under her name on the website of the organization. Before this, she taught English and Economics to Junior College students at a private establishment for 3 years.